

JUSTICE KEOGH IS HOST TO LAWYERS

Guests 400 Friends on Lawn of His Home at New Rochelle.

IS ABOUT TO RETIRE

Responds With Speech to Greetings From Bench and Bar.

Thirty-seven years ago last May a young man with a fresh smiling law school sheepskin in his grip stepped off a train at New Rochelle. Twenty years later he had used what the sheepskin brought so successfully and fairly that he became a Justice of the Supreme Court, the only Democrat of his ticks who was a winner. He has been on the bench twenty-seven years, and now, with a remarkable record as a judge, he is about to retire with the respect and affection of the members of the bar and of the public.

Justice Martin J. Keogh, who made probably his last public appearance yesterday when he greeted more than four hundred friends in the judicial and legal profession on the lawn of his home in the Palisades road, New Rochelle. The reception and greetings were tinged with sadness because of Justice Keogh's long illness, the infirmity which finally compels his retirement from his life's work. Some years ago he fell and suffered a broken hip, and this shock to his nervous system was such that he never recovered from it and has been unable to walk. But he welcomed his visitors from the Ninth Judicial district—Rockland, Orange, Putnam, Dutchess and Westchester—and from New York with smiling gladness as he sat among the flowers surrounded by his family, and he responded with a speech to the greetings from bench and bar and the presentation of a new resolution adopted by the Westchester County Bar Association.

Among the speakers who expressed their deep regret generally felt over the retirement of Justice Keogh were Supreme Court Justice Charles Hughes of New York, Justice Charles McHugh of New York, Justice William J. Kelly of Brooklyn, and J. Addison Young of New Rochelle, former Justice Isaac N. Mills of the Appellate Division, John M. Dineen and other members of the bar. These brought out the salient facts of Justice Keogh's admirable career, stated by the late Mayor Gaynor in an epigram: "Justice was never strangled in a web of law in any court over which Justice Keogh presided."

Justice Keogh said that the tributes just paid him were a public servant's fullest measure of compensation. "When I was on the bench," he said, "I had no enemies to punish, no enemies to gratify, no reprisals to make, and if the roll of lawyers of the Ninth Judicial district were called I would not find upon it a man whom I have not trusted, and not one has shown himself unworthy of my confidence. No judge ever had more delightful and charitable assistants or a more truly trustworthy bar than I had to work with. I hope I may be able to go to White Plains often to see you all in harness."

Lawyers at the reception recalled that Justice Keogh in his long service used the gavel, never had an altercation with counsel and always presided so that the defeated party left court satisfied that they had had a fair trial. Justice Keogh was elected to the Supreme Court in 1895, and at the end of his first term was unanimously nominated to succeed himself.

'LITTLE NOBEL PRIZE' OFFERED POLICE CHIEFS

Trophy Worth $1,000 for Best Suggestion at Convention.

"Little Nobel prize" has been offered by the members of New York to the delegate to the 1923 conference of international police chiefs who makes the best police suggestion. The prize will be a trophy worth $1,000. A committee will receive suggestions at the next conference, to be held here in May, and will select the one which seems most beneficial and meritorious. The announcement of the offer was made to the conference yesterday by Police Commissioner Enright.

Delegates to the number of 460 went sleeping yesterday.

Party Frocks and Evening Gowns for Misses and Small Women

Colors? There is a whole flower garden of fairy tints and shades in our complete assemblage—airy pastel chiffons, with here and there the shimmer of silver picoting; chiffon taffetas with quaintly bouffant skirts and diminutive ruffles; and crepe Roma gowns trailing draperies from shoulder to hem.

Most elaborate of all, there are gowns of cloth of gold or silver, gold and silver laces, lustrous chiffon velvets as soft as thistle down and richly brocaded chiffon velvets.

An assortment so complete and so utterly charming that the needs of every festive hour of the social calendar can be filled, whether for the dance, for dinner, the theatre or the opera.

$39.75 to 225.00

Our special facilities for Bridesmaids' Frocks enable us to assure you of the utmost satisfaction on any order entrusted to our care.

Offered also is a brilliant collection of evening wraps and capes of chiffon velvet, trimmed with polu and fur.
